

The 19th annual Computers Freedom and Privacy (CFP 2009) conference will be at the Marvin Center at George Washington University in Washington, DC, June 1-4, 2009.

Early Bird Registration for CFP 2009 will be open until Friday, May 1, 2009. After May 2, 2009, standard prices will apply.

We urge you to make your reservations early, since the standard price is $50-100 more than the early-bird prices.

Please note that speakers, students, press, government, and scholarship recipients will have to verify their status when checking in at registration.

Please bring a valid student ID, press credential, or government badge to verify your eligibility. If you select a registration type in error, you may change it online where you registered or when you check-in.

Email cfp2009chairs@gmail.com if you have any questions.

We're expecting the usual mix of brilliant and forward-looking activists, technologists, academics, and government experts. The United States is just several months into a new administration, and Washington, DC, is undergoing rapid change. As the technology revolution rolls on, we are confronting new issues that, as usual, CFP attendees will perceive before anyone else.
